

DAVID ANDRIOLE

AT MIT SINCE 2016
Coaching men's water polo team
and teaching beginner swimming
Physical Education classes

FAVORITE PIZZA TOPPINGS
Sausage and onions

FAVORITE THING ABOUT TEACHING AT MIT
Watching students progress and gain confidence in a new skill

EDUCATION
B.A. in History from Yale
J.D. from Northwestern

ADVICE FROM FUTURE SELF
Relax and enjoy the moment

David Andriole

David started teaching at MIT in 2016. He holds a history degree from Yale and law degree from Northwestern University. He grew up playing a wide variety of sports including tennis, golf, soccer, and basketball. As he began to specialize, he focused as a varsity swimmer and water polo player both in High School and in college. While in college, he taught swimming lessons to 6-12 year olds through an American Red Cross program. David has taught and coached swimming and water polo from children and adolescents to college age and adults, and from the beginner to expert levels.