FAVORITE THING ABOUT TEACHING AT MIT

I enjoy working with student athletes who are highly motivated and driven to succeed

EDUCATION

Bachelor' in Physical Education from the University of Vermont Masters in Sport Management from the University of Maryland

BEST ADVENTURE

10 day "buddies" golf trip to Ireland

Andy Barlow joined the MIT team in 2004 as a PE instructor and the Head Baseball Coach. He has taught golf, badminton, squash, and weight lifting, enjoying observing the progression of students who come to an activity with little or no experience. Barlow graduated from the University of Vermont and the University of Maryland with degrees in Physical Education and Sport Management, respectively. His favorite TV shows are Big Bang Theory and The Blacklist and his best adventure was a 10 day golf trip to Ireland with friends.
